Mr Hobson, my neighbour, is a do-it-yourself enthusiast. He is always doing something in his (1) in the back of his house. He spends there long hours constructing or fixing things. He has got all the necessary (2) and equipment. His wife says that he is a (3). He can do all the (4) in the house on his own. He can fix a water heater, mend a broken pipe, replace a faulty fuse and many other useful things. Whenever I need help, I ask Mr Hobson a favour and he never refuses. Two weeks ago, for example, he stopped a (5) in my bathroom. He said that it was caused by a broken pipe. And yesterday he fixed my iron. Mr Hobson always says that (6) is the most important thing. If we don't want our appliances to break down fast, we had better take good care of them.
